

SOLUTION BRIEF:

Get More for Your IT Asset Disposition (ITAD) with Tectonic

Instead of getting pennies on the dollar for your end-of-life mobile devices, what if your company could get fair market value for them and improve the lives of adults with autism? That's what enterprise-scale reverse logistics through Stratix repair and disposition partner Tectonic offers.

Tectonic is a 501(c)(3) business offering best-in-class service for mobile asset repair and disposition that employs highly trained technicians who experience autism and other neurodiversities. Tectonic is a division of the Jonathan's Landing Foundation, which helps create a life of dignity, purpose, and belonging for neurodiverse adults through innovative neuroinclusive housing solutions and career development. Tectonic has a certified team of rigorously-trained neurodiverse adults who are showing the world what adults with autism can achieve.

Greater Returns

Because Tectonic is a 501(c)(3) organization, your company can recoup the maximum value for end-of-life devices—even after they've been fully depreciated—by donating instead of selling them for scrap. Whether in mint condition, gently used, or damaged, your devices can bring higher financial returns through donation.

How it Works

1. Reach out to Stratix and tell us you want to donate your old devices.
2. Tectonic will help you determine the value of your donation based on the quantity, age, and condition of your devices.
3. Once devices are shipped to Tectonic, you'll get a receipt notification within 24 hours of arrival. Their technicians will inventory and process them to ensure any remaining data is properly destroyed.
4. Within 48 hours of processing, your IRS donation letter and an itemized inventory of devices will be sent to you.

When you donate, any devices not viable for resale will be used to train neurodiverse adults pursuing their certification as new technicians. Devices that are still useable will be repaired and resold, and those profits will help offset the cost for residents and their families at Jonathan's Landing.
